In 2013, Labor won big legislative victories for workers: Ending the anti-worker Enterprise Zone program and repurposing it for good job creation, a minimum wage increased to the highest in the nation, the strongest protections ever for immigrant workers facing retaliation, and new incentives for cities to pay prevailing wage.

These victories were won by union members who filled the Capitol halls in record numbers this year. They were won by immigrant workers who bravely told their stories in legislative hearings as their bosses looked on. We won because workers stood together and stood up for dignity, respect, and fairness.

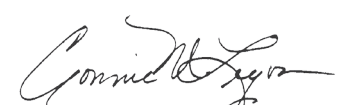

As we celebrate these achievements, we will not lose sight of the realities most workers face every day. Too many workers work multiple part-time jobs just to make ends meet or labor for years as “temporary” workers. Wealth inequality undermines our progress and threatens our economic recovery.

At a time when elected democrats are becoming more timid, we must be bold in our fight to rebuild the middle class. When immigrant workers at the Marquez Brothers plant in Hanford faced threats and firings for trying to organize for better conditions, Assembly Labor Chair Roger Hernandez led fellow legislators all the way to Hanford to stand with those workers.

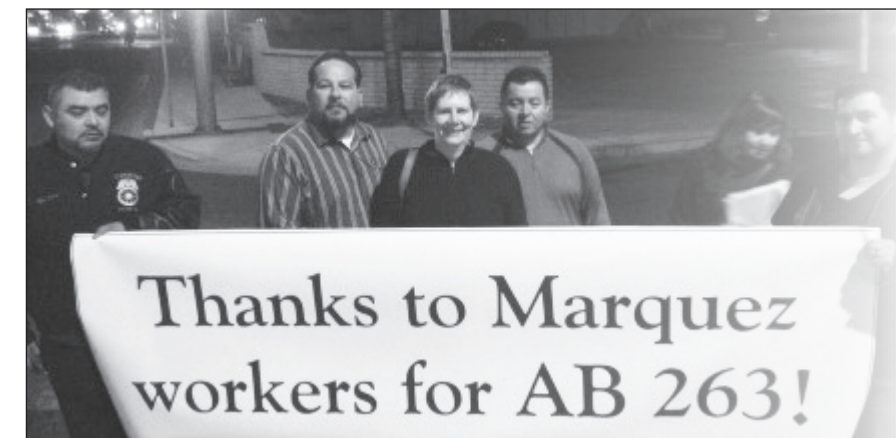

Now is the time for true leadership to stand up for working people, tackle income inequality and build a stable middle class for everyone.

In Solidarity,

Art Pulaski
Executive Secretary-Treasurer

Connie Leyva
President
